

Who Were Your Teachers?

Make a list of as many of your pre-school through Grade 12 teachers as you can. If you were homeschooled, this will be easy. If you were in a multi-age classroom or attended school in another country, adjust as needed. If you cannot remember a name, simply describe the person. For years where you had several teachers, write all the teachers you can remember from that year.

When you've exhausted your memory, circle the name of just one teacher (or coach/instructor) who you feel had the greatest (positive) impact on your life. Use the next page to write a short reflection of or letter to this teacher. What was it about this person that made such an impact? What ideas or strategies have you borrowed from this person for your own teaching practice? If you can locate this teacher, consider mailing this letter to them.
